28th GEEW

Brussels, June 21 – 23, 2010

The 28th GEEW (Gastroenterology and Endotherapy European Workshop) will take place at the Brussels Exhibition Centre from June 21 – 23, 2010.

Held every year in June since 1983, this meeting has become established as one of the largest European Workshops in its field and attracts approximately 800 participants coming from 50 different countries.

The overall goal of this course is to provide information about current technology and to enhance knowledge in gastroenterology and endotherapy. The new technologies and future prospects of endotherapy that will be discussed with the audience during live demonstrations and State of the Art lectures.

ESGE Individual members are encouraged to take advantage of the 20% registration fee reduction for this workshop which is being held under ESGE patronage (registration deadline: May 1st, 2010).

Designed for endoscopists and gastroenterologists but also for physicians in training as well as for nurses and GI assistants, the meeting will include live video dem-

ESGE Postgraduate Grants Programme 2011

As of 2011, ESGE offers an extended Postgraduate Grant programme designed to meet the needs of fully trained endoscopists and to improve endoscopic practice. This successful programme is now diversifying the type of grants to include hands-on training and a new module for endoscopy unit directors.

Module I – “Basic Training with Experts”

During a maximum of four weeks, depending on the unit and techniques studied, this module enables fully trained endoscopists or trainees to observe basic steps or to discuss tricks on specific techniques. Hands-on training is not offered to Module I grantees.

Module II – “Training with Experts”

Module II includes hands-on training for specific techniques during a period of 3 to 6 months. Detailed requirements for Module II grant application may be found at www.esge.com.

Module III – “Endoscopy Unit Directors Module”

This Module is available to heads of endoscopic units wishing to visit leading units to observe organizational models for a maximum of one week.
