ESGE Days 2020

April 23–25, 2020
Dublin, Ireland

Abstract submission now open

It is with great pleasure that ESGE invites you to submit your abstracts for ESGE Days 2020, our third congress taking place in Dublin, Ireland, April 23–25, 2020.

By opening the call for abstracts, ESGE wishes to engage with our participants, to open up a forum which offers authors the opportunity to discuss and disseminate their work on an international stage. ESGE encourages work that contains basic, clinical or translational research findings.

- All accepted abstracts will be published in Endoscopy
- Travel grants will be awarded to the top abstracts (abstract author 40 years old or younger).

Submit your abstract before November 30, 2019 for your chance to actively contribute to ESGE Days 2020.

myESGEtutor course registration extended

If you have not taken advantage of this new ESGE eLearning tool then register now!

myESGEtutor, ESGE's tool for online eLearning courses, launched in May 2019, is available to all ESGE individual members free of charge until October 31, 2019.

According to our survey, all those who have completed the course are very satisfied and 100% have confirmed that they would like to take part in future ESGE online eLearning courses.

myESGEtutor is a module-based eLearning system with lectures, clinical cases, a self-assessment exam and a final certification of completion for each module.

Two modules are currently available in the membership section of the ESGE website:

- Colorectal polypectomy and endoscopic mucosal resection
- Diagnosis and management of Barrett's esophagus

To access the myESGEtutor platform, log into your ESGE membership page and select to register for access to myESGEtutor. You will receive a personalised log-in to myESGEtutor.
