Submit your abstract to ESGE Days 2023

Could your research make an impact at the premier endoscopy meeting in Europe? Our call for abstracts is now open, and the deadline for submissions is December 6, 2023.

Our top four abstracts will be featured in the opening session, travel grants will be awarded to top submitters 40 years old and younger, plus all accepted abstracts are published in the Endoscopy journal with an Impact Factor of 9.7. We hope you'll agree that ESGE Days is the perfect forum at which to present your best research!

Dr Ishita Barua, Norway, was one of the ESGE Days 2022 top four abstracts; "I was very grateful to be able to present our work during ESGE Days, because it gave our paper excellent exposure and led to the kind of discussions we wanted to bring forward with the target audience." ESGE Days 2023 will take place as a hybrid event, hosted in Dublin, Ireland and online April 20–22, 2023.

ESGE Research Grants: We are open for applications!

ESGE Research Grants support innovative, original research in gastroenterology. Advance your endoscopic work by winning up to 10,000 € of financial support and guidance from top European endoscopists. Top applicants then take part in the ESGE Research Champions' Den, at ESGE Days, where a jury of eminent researchers quiz the candidates, live. The best two or three are awarded research grants.

Dr Milou van Riswijk was one of three grant winners at ESGE Days 2022; "The ESGE Champions' Den was a great experience. I really enjoyed meeting the experts, and the discussions that took place helped me to shape and fine-tune our research idea and future publication. I would definitely recommend applying for a grant!"

Have you heard about ESGE Endorsed Research Projects?

One of the main objectives of ESGE is to promote good quality research in the field of GI endoscopy. In addition to the ESGE Research Grants, we offer endorsement to other research projects without ESGE funding. ESGE endorsement may enhance the chances of funding from other sources (Industry, National Grants bodies, Charities, etc.) and rapid dissemination of research ideas. Also, as part of our endorsement, projects looking for participants can provide ESGE with details such as registration links and contact details which we publish online and in ESGE Newsletters.
